CHAIRMAN'S STATEMENT

The Group has performed well overall despite the economic environment and we are pleased with the robust revenue and profit growth achieved in all of our core markets. Strong progress has been made in Europe and the UK, where our recent acquisitions are on track. In the USA, we are particularly pleased with our growth over the last six months. Financial results for the six months ended 31 July 2008 reflect another excellent performance in both revenue and profit and the balance sheet has been further strengthened.

Increased client demand for outsourcing is driving growth in the Group's strategic IT outsourcing and offshore services business. Recruitment market conditions have been slightly more mixed, with demand for executive search strong while contingent permanent revenue is more subdued, mainly in the Financial Services sector. Demand for freelance IT professionals has improved in the US over the period and is stable in the UK and Europe.

All of the Group's recent acquisitions are on track to complete their first year earn-out targets successfully. Integration is also progressing well and cross selling synergies are being realised.

Critical mass increased year on year with average fee-earner headcount increasing by 12%. Headcount peaked in October 2007 but has reduced by 3% since that time. As stated in our preliminary results statement in April 2008, our focus is on achieving additional productivity gains and maintaining tight control of working capital and costs.

Financial Results

The Group's revenue for the six months ended 31 July 2008 increased by 39% to £199.8m (2007: £143.9m). Net fee income accelerated by 24% (2007:17%) to £33.3m (2007: £27.0m), mainly due to the change in mix of services.

Operating profit increased by 22% (2007: 12%) to £4.3m (2007: £3.5m) and profit before tax increased by 25% to £3.9m (2007: £3.1m). The tax charge for the period was £1.1m (2007: £1.0m) and the tax rate was 28.5% (2007: 30.8%).

Basic earnings per share increased by 15% (2007:15%) to 3.59p (2007: 3.13p). The weighted average number of shares in the period increased to 77.4m (2007: 68.4m) being the effect of the share based financing of the acquisition of Alumni AB in the comparative period. On a like for like basis earnings per share increased by 21%.

Balance Sheet

The balance sheet has been strengthened over the period as net assets increased by 18% to £50.4m (2007: £42.7m) with net tangible asset value (excluding goodwill and intangibles) increasing by 41%.

In accordance with the rules dealing with the recognition of acquired intangible assets separately from goodwill, £1m has been recognised in respect of the market leading Alumni brand from the acquisition in Sweden.

Movements in deferred income tax asset are mainly due to deferred tax on share options, holiday accruals and interest. The contingent consideration of £2.8m represents estimates of potential future payments for the acquisition of Alumni AB and TechDiscovery LLP.

Total receivables were 45% higher than at 31 July 2007 mainly as a result of the 39% increase in turnover and the acquisitions in US and Ireland. Working capital continues to be tightly managed and debtor days were 45 compared to 44 last year, an excellent result given the record increase in turnover and current economic environment.

Cash

Despite the 39% increase in turnover, the Group reported a strong increase in cash of £4.0m since 31 July 2007, with a net cash position of £1.6m (2007: net borrowings £2.4m). As expected, with a higher proportion of growth coming from the longer term contract base, working capital growth has absorbed cash since 31 January 2008 resulting in short term working capital movements generating a net interest cost.

The Group repaid early all of its long term debt in the year to 31 January 2008. The Group's working capital facilities have been increased to circa £28m, which allows sufficient headroom for growth.

Strategy

The group has pursued a strategy of investing for growth whilst managing the business in a way which provides stability over the longer term.

Firstly, we have focused on growing the blue-chip client base ensuring that no individual client represents more than 5% of the Group's net fee income. Larger, globalised groups are more consistent purchasers of recruitment and outsourcing services than small to medium sized enterprises. The Group has increased investment in these relationships over recent years with a view to maintaining high levels of repeat business going forward.

Secondly, we have diversified into energy, utilities and the public sector. In the UK, our fastest growth area has been the senior public sector recruitment sector, consolidating our status as a top tier supplier in that market.

Thirdly, in a more uncertain economic environment, there is always a flight to quality which benefits strong leading brands. In the UK and mainland Europe, our brand is recognised as a market leader by clients and candidates. In Scandinavia, Harvey Nash Alumni is the number one executive recruitment and leadership brand. In Asia we are working with blue-chip clients as well as the government of Vietnam, to develop the country's technology expertise and leverage its value across the world.

Finally, the unique Harvey Nash portfolio of services has been a major factor in the current success. As demand for permanent staff has slowed, increased demand for contractors, particularly in the US, and interim management in the UK, reflects our clients' increasingly defensive hiring intentions. With our offshore and business process outsourcing offering in Vietnam we are able to align our interests with clients wishing to rapidly reduce development and processing costs. The mix of gross profit attributable to contractor, offshore and business process outsourcing is longer term in nature with increased visibility and comprises 57% of the total gross profit during the period.

Looking forward, we are confident that our proven strategy and long-term approach to relationships will provide critical visibility to the business in this difficult economic environment.

Operational Review

United Kingdom and Ireland

Revenue in the UK and Ireland has increased by 23% to £61.0m (2007: £49.6m) and operating profit increased by 12% to £2.0m (2007: £1.8m).

Demand for executive search and technology recruitment has been strong over the period under review and growth in net fee income has reflected this trend. Continued diversity has been a key focus with the opening of a second location in Leeds and expanding the group's new office in Edinburgh.

In the technology market the Harvey Nash brand remains a market leader, with further investment being targeted through thought leadership and relationship building activities. The Group's key objective in this market is to leverage the existing strength of the brand as the current flight to quality by both candidates and clients increases in pace.

In addition, the UK business continues to invest and develop its market leading public sector practice which encompasses senior search, interim management and technology recruitment.

Investment banking sentiment has been in decline for some time as we reported in April. It remains to be seen how the latest developments on Wall Street and in London will affect demand. However, the Group has no material exposure to any of the high profile bank failures or the recent consolidation across the sector.

Continental Europe

Revenue in mainland Europe increased by 54% to £126.5m (2007: £82.4m), and operating profit increased by 35% to £1.9m (2007: £1.4m).

Demand for specialist professional recruitment has been strong in Europe. New areas of investment such as in Scandinavia with the acquisition of Alumni AB, have seen significant demand particularly in the mid-market. Permanent revenue growth in Germany and Belgium is up over 80% year on year with France up 177%. Switzerland's performance has been in line with the decline in demand from the Financial Services sector but the Netherlands has increased its profits by 72% mainly due to the success of its HR outsourcing model. In France, the Group increased its fee earning capacity driving revenue growth of 181%, resulting in a narrowing of the loss by 23% to £0.2m for the period.

United States

Revenue in the USA was 3% higher at £12.3m (2007: £12.0m), and operating profit growth 19% to £0.4m (2007: £0.3m).

We have focused on higher margin activities such as executive search, strategic IT consulting and offshore services during the slowdown and consequently the US business has reported growth in market share, revenues and profits during a far more challenging trading climate. We have invested in the California and Washington markets where we have built strong relationships with Fortune 1000 companies in the resilient technology and wireless telecoms sector. Latest data from researcher Forrester, indicate that these markets are expected to show growth.

In the comparable period last year, demand for permanent technology professionals was strong and the business experienced lower levels of demand for flexible IT professionals. This trend has reversed during the six months to July 2008 with an increased contract forward order book offsetting more subdued demand for technology recruitment. Executive search revenues remain stable.

Acquisitions

In May 2007, Harvey Nash completed the acquisition of Alumni AB in Sweden. The first earn-out target was successfully achieved and resulted in further consideration of £0.9m settled in cash in August 2008. In June 2007, the Group acquired the SilkRoad group based in Vietnam. This business has also achieved its first year targets although any further payments settled in shares are not material. In August 2007, the Group acquired 100% of the share capital of Rescon IT Limited in Ireland and an additional payment of £1.2m is now due as a result of the first year target being achieved. In November 2007, the Group acquired 56.6% of the share capital of TechDiscovery LLP and under the earn-out agreement an additional payment currently estimated at £1.5m, has been accrued.

Cash flow

Operating cash flow before movements in working capital was up 20% to £4.8m (2007: £4.0m). The significant increase in turnover of 39% resulted in additional investment in working capital of £5.1m. Taxes paid represented £0.7m (2007: £0.4m), capital expenditure of £0.2m (2007: £0.3m) was incurred and net interest paid was steady at £0.4m (2007: £0.4m). Deferred payments on acquisition represented £0.3m compared to £1.2m in the prior year. Net cash of £1.6m compared to a net borrowings of £2.4m in the prior year.

Dividends

The Group will pay an increased interim dividend of 0.8p per share (2007: 0.7p) which is up 14%, on 28 November 2008 to shareholders on the register at 10 October 2008.

Outlook

We are delighted with the performance of our US business, demonstrating strength and relative stability in the current market conditions, and we remain confident of further progress in our UK, European and Asian businesses.

The pipeline for the second half of the year is encouraging, and although visibility is low we believe growth will be achieved through organic investment, new contract wins and bolt on acquisitions. We will continue to manage the business prudently with a focus on driving revenue volume, and maintaining tight control of costs and working capital.

Principal risks facing the business

The principal risks facing the Group remain unchanged from those set out in the annual report of the Group's results for 2008. These are chiefly the risk of an economic downturn and dependence on key personnel. The Group's strategy for mitigating these risks is laid out in detail in the 2008 annual report.

SYMBIAN

With Harvey Nash it was more of a trusted partner relationship than a straightforward recruitment exercise

Greg Allen, Head of Global Recruitment, Symbian

COOL OPERATOR

Symbian is a software licensing company that develops and licenses the world's leading operating system for smartphones – advanced, data-enabled mobile phones. Headquartered in London, Symbian also has offices in the US and Asia, and by June 2007 the company had shipped 145 million smartphones.

When the Vice-President of Operating Systems (OS) Product Marketing was promoted to the job of Executive Vice-President (EVP) of Marketing, with a seat on the board, Symbian contacted Harvey Nash to help it identify a successor. The role was critical, as the incumbent would be responsible for driving all future developments of the Symbian operating system.

The most important requirements for this international role were strong product marketing and leadership skills, and a good man management background. The new recruit would also need credibility and the ability to hold their own and add value in a company staffed by very bright and driven people.

"Symbian appointed Harvey Nash just before Christmas 2006, and we had drawn up a shortlist by the middle of February. After an extensive Europe-wide search, we placed a great person by the end of March," says Hugo Thomas, senior consultant in the technology practice at Harvey Nash Executive Search.

The successful candidate was a Spanish national who was living in the UK. He had been working for the mobile terminal division of NEC as Head of Strategy and Business Development, and before that was a member of the senior management team at management consultancy Diamond Cluster. He holds an MBA from French business school Inséad.

"Hugo was excellent," says Greg Allen, Head of Global Recruitment at Symbian. "He rapidly got to know us, understand what we needed and won the confidence of the EVP of Marketing. The pool of great managers in this area is tight, but he fielded a strong range of candidates so we could make an informed choice. It was more of a trusted partner relationship than a straightforward recruitment exercise."

The new VP of OS Product Marketing is already playing a strategic role in Symbian. "We are very happy with him, but I believe his greatest impact will come longer term," says Allen. "He will be spending a growing amount of time with our key customers – the likes of Nokia, Siemens, Sony Ericsson and so on – about the future development of mobile phones."

Mobile phone operating system company Symbian was growing rapidly, and needed to fill the crucial role of VP of Operating Systems Product Marketing due to a promotion

It hired Harvey Nash to conduct a Europe-wide search for someone with relevant experience, along with strong leadership skills and the ability to hold their own in a company full of very bright, driven people

Within three months the new VP of OS Product Marketing had been appointed, and is now working with key customers on strategic developments in the mobile market

CENTRO-WMPTA

Steve Chatwin, Organisation Change and Development Director, Centro-WMPTA

GETTING ON BOARD

Centro-WMPTA is the Passenger Transport Executive and Authority for the West Midlands. Its remit is to work with the region's public transport operators and seven unitary councils to create the kind of high-quality public transport systems that will reduce the public's dependence on their cars.

“Last year's Eddington Transport Study and the draft Local Transport Bill highlighted the major role that good public transport can play in reducing congestion, improving air quality, helping economic growth, aiding regeneration and social cohesion, and affording greater access to health care,” says Steve Chatwin, Organisation Change and Development Director at Centro-WMPTA. “Given this pivotal potential role public transport can play we decided to look at our structures last year and see if they were fit for purpose.”

A review of the organisation led to a decision to restructure it, with a focus on five key areas. These were finance and planning, policy and strategy, bus and highways, rail and rapid transit, and organisation change and development – and it created five new directorates accordingly. The new directorates were formally approved in May. The existing Head of Policy and Strategy slotted immediately across into the new structure, and Centro-WMPTA decided to use an executive search firm to help them fill the other four posts.

Centro-WMPTA went out to tender and appointed Harvey Nash. One reason was a pre-existing relationship between Chatwin and consultant Noorzaman Rashid, in which Rashid demonstrated a through knowledge of how Passenger Transport Executives and Authorities operate and the issues, relationships and politics they have to contend with.

Two of the four posts were filled internally – including Chatwin's own. Because he went through the same assessment process as the external candidates, he was not involved in the recruitment exercise. “Typically I would be heavily involved, and it meant that Harvey Nash handled more of the process than is usual,”

The beauty – and the challenge – of being able to recruit a complete new executive team meant that Centro-WMPTA and Harvey Nash could factor in team dynamics to the recruitment process. “We needed to foster more of a team-working approach, because in the past we had probably been guilty of silo thinking.”

So the battery of psychometric tests the candidates undertook included those designed to assess preferred ways of working and communication styles. Harvey Nash is still feeding some of the results back to Centro-WMPTA to help it develop the top team.

Centro-WMPTA, the Passenger Transport Executive and Authority in the West Midlands, decided to restructure its top team to ensure it was capable of delivering the kind of public transport system that would reduce the public's dependency on their cars

Given the difficulty of explaining exactly what it does, it turned to Harvey Nash to help it 'sell' the business and recruit four new directors through executive search

Harvey Nash completed the search and conducted the interviews within eight weeks, and is currently helping Centro-WMPTA develop the top team into a cohesive whole using the insights gained during the assessment process
