SNOWDOGS OFFICIALLY CHANGES ITS NAME TO HARVEY NASH

Harvey Nash U.S. Acquisition Finalizes Name Change

Parsippany, NJ (May 19, 2005) – SnowDogs, the Seattle-based arm of Harvey Nash's IT recruitment and solutions practices, has officially changed its name to Harvey Nash.

In 2003, SnowDogs was acquired by Harvey Nash, one of the world's leading IT recruitment and executive search firms with operations throughout Europe, Asia and the U.S. Over the last five years, Harvey Nash has grown extensively across the United States to include offices in Washington, California, Connecticut, Colorado, Florida, Illinois, New Jersey and New York. With strongholds in Europe and more than 25 offices worldwide, Harvey Nash is publicly traded on the London Stock Exchange under the symbol (HVN).

"SnowDogs has been a great name in the Seattle market, helping us establish a personal relationship with the more than 100 businesses we serve. As Harvey Nash, we can further strengthen those partnerships, communicating and providing a comprehensive range of services and national resources to our valued clients," says Sean Horan, VP and market director for Harvey Nash in Washington.

Harvey Nash in Seattle and across the U.S. offers businesses IT talent and business solutions as well as executive search and finance and accounting recruitment services.

"Our name change in Seattle reflects our commitment to sharing with businesses throughout the Washington area Harvey Nash's full spectrum of solutions," says Robert J. Miano, president of Harvey Nash's U.S. operations. "Leveraging the Harvey Nash name is one of the first steps in sharing our story and vast range of IT, Executive Search and Finance and Accounting expertise with the local market."
